

Welcome!

*Ed Kornhauser
Trio
In Concert*

Ed Kornhauser

Transplanted from the East Coast a very young age, Edward Kornhauser grew up in Escondido, California. He attended SDSU, receiving a Bachelor of Music in Jazz Studies in 2009. Primarily a jazz pianist, he has studied the language, vocabulary, and repertoire of classic jazz, as well as those of the modern. A deep love of jazz notwithstanding, Edward has played in blues bands off and on over the years, and currently plays for vocalist Whitney Shay in both her blues and jazz bands. He works as a freelance musician, and can be frequently heard backing local crooner David Patrone, as well as playing in saxophonist Chris Klich's Jazz Quintet. In addition, Ed is also is the staff accompanist at Unity Way Church in Vista (since 2006), and plays keyboards in local alt-country-soul band 'Jesse LaMonaca & the Dime Novels.

Mackenzie Leighton

Mackenzie Leighton (bass) Mackenzie graduated from San Diego State in 2010, having played in combos and the big bands during his time there. Outside of school, he's played in an eclectic mix of ensembles, including indie-folk trio The Wrong Trousers, free-jazz/metal band Mutant Spaceboy, and well as frequently playing casuals with some of San Diego's finest players. Currently he's employed by Holland America cruise lines as a musician on one of their ships.

Fernando Gomez

Fernando Gomez (drums) A native of San Diego, Fernando is as adept at playing Afro-Cuban and Latin American styles as he is at swinging. He can be heard frequently backing trumpeter and SD jazz luminary Gilbert Castellanos. In addition, he plays drums behind pianist Lynn Willard, Afro-Cuban ensemble The Afrojazziacs, R&B singer-songwriter Steph Johnson, and young piano phenom Chase Morrin.
